Not illustrated. 1911 Excerpt: .1 Nine pennies would mean such a great deal to a little town boy or girl who is hoping that thix year he or she won t be -left behind ! Suppose every Little Folks reader were to send ninepence; that would give a day s holiday to as many boys and girls as there are readers of Little Folks. And you can imagine what a great number that would be! So before you go away this year, see if you can t make sure that some pale-faced Tommy or Bessy shall go away too--for a day at least And here s three times three to the Fresh Air Fund, 22 St. Bride Street, London, E.C.--and don t forget that three times three is ninepence 1 N the black darkness of the night three men silently hurried towards the blazing beacon on Wizard s Head. A terrific gale was blowing, the wind wailed and shrieked, and the waves hurled themselves madly against the rocks below. But the deafening uproar did not disturb these men, for their intent was evil, and the greed of gain was in their hearts. When they reached the beacon they set to work without a word, lifting the flaming faggots one by one and hurling them over the cliffs with such force that they whizzed through the air with the swiftness of rockets, and sank into the sea. Soon there was nothing left of the fire but a heap of Rmouldering ashes;...
