And multitudes are flocking round; And travellers, as they onward roam, Approach to listen to that message strange, That bodes the advent of some wondrous change. Record and witness thou did st bear To Christ, thy Master and thy Lord; Thou wert the herald of the King, Forerunner of the Eternal Word; Nor didst thou mourn to find thy honours cease, That He, thy promised Saviour, might increase. Thine was a voice to wake and rouse The silent slumbering Church of God, To kindle to a flame the spark Whereon the oppressor had not trod: Oft was thy message on the winds upborne, Thou mighty one, midst those of woman born! Methinks I gaze upon thee now, Mid shadow of some lone palm-trees; The desert fastnesses around, The giant blast, the sweeping breeze, Making their...
